Comments of the portfolio manager:

During the month, the managers demonstrated active dynamics within the compartment's country and currency allocation. Strategic moves were made to capitalize on interest rate differentials and monetary policy in Central and Eastern Europe. This resulted in increasing exposure to local debt from Poland, the Czech Republic, Hungary, and Romania, with the weighting in the respective local currencies being built up. Within Latin America, the managers maintained a constructive stance regarding the Brazilian and Mexican markets. For instance, the position in Brazil was expanded through bonds denominated in both US dollars and local real, supported by attractive real yields. Additionally, extra exposure was added to the Mexican peso, while the allocation in the Colombian peso was partially reduced to streamline currency risk. Finally, the compartment was further diversified in the Asian region by taking a new position in Malaysian debt in local currency.
