

Econopolis is looking for a...

JUNIOR ANALYST

The Junior Analyst will work closely with the other Econopolis team members to automate trading and reporting processes, test new tools, support IT, support trade execution, written reports and presentations, construct quant and more advanced models and perform risk management controls. We also expect the analyst to be actively involved in executing trades, write factsheets and prepare presentations for clients and distributors.

Following a successful fulfilment of this role, the Analyst will be awarded greater responsibilities and input into investment decisions (for example via Quant and advanced models) and have intensive contact with portfolio managers.

Profile

- o You have extended IT skills (experienced in programming in R, ...)
- o You have an outspoken passion for investing (no prior investing experience required)
- o You have a Master's degree, advanced degree or equivalent experience
- o You have excellent analytical and quantitative skills, with strong attention to detail
- o You have the ability to work with clients at all levels of our company (both internal and external)
- o You have strong Excel skills

What do we offer you?

We offer an attractive and open working environment in which people are supported to be self-starting and given freedom to develop their skills. Roles within Econopolis are defined but we offer significant flexibility to evolve. You will be working with an entrepreneurial team that is a mix of young talent and seasoned investors.

Key responsibilities

- o You will automate processes (trading, reporting, portfolio management)
- o You will assist in the IT support and look for improvements in our IT infrastructure
- o You will construct Quant models (and look for machine learning and AI models) to support top-down analysis and test our existing models
- o You will automate testing for existing applications
- o You will support (and automate) the trade execution
- o You will manage and organise monthly factsheets, presentations and one-off projects or requests.
- o You will give input to the continuously improve the investment process

Interested?

Send your CV en motivation letter to info@econopolis.be