Manager's commentary

Two new names made their entrance. Syensqo, the specialty-chemicals arm spun off from Solvay in 2023, opens a window onto structural growth markets such as battery materials and high-performance composites, while biscuit maker Lotus Bakeries, with its strong brands and consistent growth, reinforces the quality corner of the compartment. In the Belgian technology and biotech pillar, substantial additions were made : the positions in antibody specialist Argenx, chip producers X-Fab and Melexis and biotech company Agomab all went up. On the other hand, the managers fully divested the real-estate companies Warehouses De Pauw and Aedifica, and imaging-technology company EVS was reduced. Grid operator Elia was also substantially scaled back. Behind these moves lies a deliberate shift : interest-rate-sensitive real estate and regulated utility activities make way for semiconductors, biotech and family-owned growth companies with pricing power. The core of solid, well-anchored Belgian names such as UCB and Ackermans & van Haaren remains untouched.

Risk

For the risk indicator, it is assumed that you hold the product for 5 years. The actual risk can vary significantly if you sell at an early stage and you may get back less. The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared with other products. It shows how likely it is that investors will suffer losses on the product because of market developments or because no money is available for payment. We have classified this product in class 4 out of 7 ; this is a medium risk class. This means that potential losses on future performance are estimated as medium and that the possibility that we may not be able to pay you because of poor market conditions may exist. Be aware of the currency risk. You may receive payments in a currency different from the reference currency, so the final return you receive depends on the exchange rate between the two currencies. That risk is not taken into account in the indicator above. The compartment is also exposed to the following materially relevant risks that are not included in the summary risk indicator/ Other risk factors may exist. Because this product is not protected against future market performance, you may lose all or part of your investment. If we cannot pay you what is owed, you could lose your entire investment. Please consult the Product prospectus for more information on the risks.

Sustainability

This compartment applies a responsible investment policy based on four strategies : negative screening°, norms-based screening°, ESG integration°, and a best-in-universe approach in which only companies with strong ESG scores are selected. In addition, companies involved in controversial activities such as weapons production, tobacco and harmful oil and gas extraction are excluded. This compartment also actively uses its voting rights to promote sustainability and good governance. To learn more about this, you can consult this compartment's sustainable investment policy via link. If you wish to invest in this compartment, all of its sustainable characteristics and objectives must be taken into account.

Investment policy

The objective of the compartment is to offer investors, through an actively managed portfolio, long-term capital gains on their investment. This objective will be pursued by investing the compartment's assets principally in shares and other equity-type securities, with a geographical focus on Belgium. The compartment invests mainly in shares and other equity-type securities spread across different sectors. The compartment invests in shares and other equity instruments of companies with a geographical focus on Belgium. This Belgian geographical focus is achieved when at least one of the following criteria is met. The compartment may invest in (i) constituents of the Euronext BEL All-Share (BAS) index, (ii) companies whose head office or legal residence is in Belgium, and (iii) Belgian companies listed outside Belgium. The compartment may invest in shares and other equity-type securities selected on the basis of ongoing financial evaluations, analyses of the macroeconomic environment and the specific profile of the issuer, future developments, etc. There are no restrictions with regard to currencies or other specific economic or industrial sectors or niches. The investment manager's choices are discretionary in nature and reflect its expectations and strategic insight. The compartment's investment policy is based on an integrated approach in which valuation, quality and sustainability are important elements in equity selection. The manager conducts stock selection in a disciplined manner, taking internal and external research reports into account and developing internal valuation models that help determine whether a share offers potential. In addition, the manager also relies on internal and external sources for sustainability analysis. The compartment may also hold up to 20 % of its assets in cash deposits repayable on demand. Within the limits of the law, the compartment may invest in derivative financial products, including futures, options and forward foreign exchange contracts, to achieve its investment objectives and hedge risks. The compartment promotes environmental or social characteristics. A sustainable investment policy applies to this compartment and can be consulted at https ://www.econopolis.be/en/fondsen/fondsendocumentatie/. Additional information on sustainability is available in the fund prospectus. Reference benchmark : The portfolio is actively managed on a discretionary basis without reference to a benchmark. Subscription and redemption : Daily. Please contact your distributor for the cut-off time.

° additional explanation under Technical terms

Technical terms°

Actuarial return	The annual return that an investor can expect from an investment over a given period, taking into account the reinvestment of intermediate income such as coupons or dividends.
Management fee	The annual fee charged by the fund manager for managing the sub-fund.
Fundsquare	An online platform where financial information about funds and their Net Asset Values (NAV) is published.
SFDR classification	Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation. This classification indicates the extent to which a fund integrates sustainability criteria into its investment strategy.
NAV (Net Asset Value)	Unit value of the internal investment compartment (e.g., on the stated date and in the currency of the internal fund).
Number of positions	The total number of securities from the above asset class in the compartment.
Negative screening	Exclusion of companies through, among other things, the Norwegian exclusion list.
Norms-based screening	The investment process in which companies are screened for compliance with international standards, such as those of the United Nations, and potentially excluded if they violate these standards.
ESG integration	his is the strategy of integrating Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) criteria into the investment process.
Month To Date	Shows the return or performance from the beginning of the current month up to the most recent valuation date (see 'Data as of' below).
Year To Date	Shows the cumulative return or performance from the beginning of the calendar year up to the most recent valuation date (see 'Data as of' below).
Consumer staples	Products that people continue to buy regardless of economic conditions, such as food, beverages, and personal care items. These are basic necessities and therefore show little fluctuation in demand.
Consumer discretionary	Products for which demand is highly dependent on the economic cycle, such as cars, travel, and luxury goods. During periods of economic growth, demand increases, while it often declines during recessions.
Emerging markets	This refers to the financial market of a country that has so far lagged in economic development but whose prospects are promising.
